FEED BY CARLOADS BEING SHIPPED IN

Belief that the "food and feed" campaign in this county has been a complete success can be shattered by a glimpse of carload shipments of feed received at the local freight office of the Missouri Pacific since Monday. Eight full carloads have been brought in. The shipments comprise hay, shorts, corn and practically every other grain or other feed for stock recommended by the campaigners as profitable if grown at home on acreage taken from cotton.

The carload lots represent big outlays of money, an dprove that more work must be done if the same cropping system is not followed again this spring. The big idea behind the "food and feed" drive was to stimulate the production of enough food and feed for farm families and live stock on each farm, making them self sustaining and leaving the revenue from cotton as clear profit.

MUCH COTTON HELD IN STORAGE HERE

Cotton now held in storage at the plant of the Conway Compress Company exceeds the total 1921-22 crop by over 4,000 bales, which indicates the size of the carry over from last year's crop. The plant has in storage 15,800 bales as compared with 11,508, the number of bales ginned to March 1, 1922. Cotton held in the yards of buyers here will add to the carry over about 4,000 bales, or probably more.

Other arrangements for storage probably will be made by Conway cotton buyers as the compress maximum of 11,400 bales has already been passed. It was said, however, that the amount now stored there has been normal for about two and one-half years, the total seldom dropping below the present figure.

BOND INSPECTS WORK AT CENTRAL COLLEGE

Detail inspection of the work being done at Central College was made this morning by J. L. Bond of Little Rock, state superintendent of public instruction, to determine whether or not the college is entitled to further recognition as a Class A junior college. Mr. Bond went over the work with Pres. Doak S. Campbell and also gave attention to the college organization.

Mr. Bond expressed himself as well pleased with the work of the local institution, and it is probable that recognition upon an extended and valuable scale will be extended as a result of his study.
